ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Radwa Saad is the John Galliher Postdoctoral Fellow in Peace Studies and Black Studies at the University of Missouri. She holds a PhD in Africana Studies from Cornell University and an MSc from King's College London. Her research centers on civil-military relations, Black transnationalism, and regional integration and security alliances in Africa.

Her current book project examines how citizenship, sovereignty, and state-society contracts are negotiated through resistance to military conscription in Egypt. Her work has been supported by the Judith Reppy Institute for Peace and Conflict Studies, the Einaudi Center for International Studies, and the African Leadership Centre.
